CARRANZA OFFICIALS DENY REPORTS OF SELLING OF LIQUOR BEING PROSECUTED

NO SALOONS NEAR CHURCHES OR SCHOOLS IN CITY OF MEXICO, IS RULE.

FACTS AS TO OIL COMPANIES MARKET PRICE IS $160,000

Government Requires All Details of Organization to Be Filed With Department.

By The Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 21.—(Issue of an order by the de facto government of Mexico requiring all oil development companies to file complete details of their organization and operations, was announced tonight.) It was explained that the object was to protect the public from unscrupulous promoters.

The agency statement also told of a steady revival of business throughout the republic and of the promulgation of a new and stringent excise decree in Mexico.

"The decree," it said, "places in the hands of the municipal government complete control of the retail liquor business of Mexico City. Hereafter no saloons or other public drinking resorts will be permitted to operate on the principal streets and avenues or fronting on the public parks or plazas. Hereafter no saloon can be maintained within 100 yards of a school or church edifice. Liquor may not be sold to minors, intoxicated persons or women of ill life. The order was made to keep separate from all other merchandising business except that restaurants may sell drinks with meals. Hours for saloons in Mexico City hereafter will be from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m. daily, and from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. only on Sundays and national holidays."

By The Associated Press.
Galveston, Nov. 21.—The following telegram has been received by Mexican Consul Burns:

Mexico City, Nov. 21.—The department of finance has issued an order requiring all oil companies to file with the department before January 15 next, complete details of their organization, capitalization, ownership, management, property, works, production, etc. This information will be at all times open to the examination of the public and failure to furnish it will forfeit all privileges and concessions and cause their nullification. The order was made to protect stock buyers who have been led in the past to invest heavily in fraudulent concerns.

"Indications of the revival of business with the imminent prospect of peace are shown by the fact that there were recorded in the public registers of this city during October the organization of companies having a total capitalization of $10,000,000, including such enterprises as oil, sugar, cotton, petroleum, mines, electricity, motion pictures and various lines of manufacture."

By The Associated Press.
Laredo, Nov. 21.—You must all have patience and faith and stick to the Carranza party in its arduous task of reconstruction and overcoming the mistakes of the former regime.

This was the keynote in the first appeal direct to the people made by Venustiano Carranza in public speaking in Laredo last night.

Continuing, Carranza called attention to the fact that the reconstruction of the country would be the most difficult, would require a long time, and reiterated his appeal for patience.

When questioned as to what action he would take to protect foreigners on the west coast, Carranza replied that foreigners were not to be molested, but that the event they might be prompt action would be taken to afford relief.

Carranza also was questioned regarding the disposition of Carranza's property both at interior points and along the border. Property belonging to those guilty of offenses against Carranza would be confiscated but property seized from those who have in no way participated in politics, will be returned to the owners. This episode was handled with a firmness which Carranza said would be punished according to the merits of their case.

Speaking of conditions along the west coast of Mexico and throughout the state of Sonora, Carranza headquarters reported conditions as showing that the Carranza party in northern Mexico, by burning burning squads operating along the Hermosillo-Nogales railway line.

General Carranza reported to General Carranza today that Carranza had been arrested following the flight yesterday of the Villa forces under Gen. Jose Rodriguez. Rodriguez left several pieces of artillery and the Mexican consul stated that 1800 men and 400 cavalry horses would constitute the first detachment.

The railroad between Naco and Cananea was opened tonight for traffic. The Consolidated Copper company today purchased all food supplies available for shipment to relieve those left destitute by Rodriguez.

Williams to Fly Over City Proper Tonight

Waco will rise to the occasion in the matter of welcoming the army aeroplane squadron, although the height necessary will be something like three thousand feet.

O. E. Williams, whose night flights and afternoon bird acts have been features of the Cotton Palace, will fly up to greet the visitors when they sail into Waco on the third lap of their flight from Fort Sill, Okla., to Houston.

As a courtesy to the army aviators and for the pleasure of the citizens, Aviator Williams will make a night flight over the business section of the city tonight with his machine outlined with electric globes and the searchlights and colored effects that have made his night performances pleasing and thrilling spectacles.

Because of the unfavorable weather conditions and the commercial recovery is much greater. Furthermore, it is believed that the cost of production is less than that in any method used heretofore. It should be remembered, however, that the methods apply solely to the treatment of carnotite ore and are not necessarily applicable to pitchblende or uraninite. The methods of extracting the radium that have been evolved may be utilized under intelligent technical control by any firm association, or corporation that can obtain the raw material. Although being patented for the benefit of the people, the processes may be used freely by anyone within the United States.

last attempt last night to cover the elusive red spot with the six skimpily disks. After spending his last futile dime, he swore it couldn't be done, and, standing at the counter with a fairly large crowd of people, he looked over behind the counter with the dolls laughed a little and said confidentially to his regular customer that he hoped he would have come back to his old stand at the Palace.

The prize fat lady felt so good over the two weeks that she threatened a few pounds of her record in accepting a diamond necklace from the boy in the stand across the way. When the last few stragglers came in to pay her a visit as the tent was being taken down, she lost her passive dignity and chatted with the visitors. The girl of the combination show that stands a hundred volts of electricity, after she had put the death cap on for the last time, slipped on her snug little cap and walked over to a hamburger stand. She laughed her neighbor out a bun and a weiner and sat munching her late supper and flirting with the open-air chef as he stood cleaning his frying pan.

Septuaginta's daughters in the high-water dives shivered their last time as they came out of the cold water and hugged an open, burning fire in front of their tents. The knife-grinder man who had time convinced of the girl farmer that one of the little wooden rings would slip over the big dirk knife that marked a pearl-handled pistol.

Loathe, the abnormal semblance of humanity all done up in a knot, was rolled around in a baby carriage from tent to tent to give his good-byes, and received an emphatic caution from the Shadow of the Cross speaker not to let the Gully Gully Mike put his collapsible box constrictor in a trunk and superintended the removal and packing of his tent.

Alice, the young lady with a covering of hair eighteen inches long all over her face, confessed to a News reporter that she had never had a more delightful time at an exposition, and that the quantity of food she had been delighted to eat was beyond belief.

Five Men Drown at Rockaway. By The Associated Press. New York, Nov. 21.—Five men were drowned off Rockaway Point today after the capsizing of their 24-foot motor boat. The stalling of the boat's engine placed it at the mercy of the wind and tide, and the two life belts tossed by the waves were blown away. The boat was overturned and a huge wave suddenly overturned the boat and Lorenz, John and Charles Ullinger, Joseph Hoffman and Albert Benovic were drowned.

"Open Revolt" Threatened. By The Associated Press. London, Nov. 21, 4:40 p. m.—Five hundred delegates, representing London trade unionists, today passed a resolution pledging themselves to resist to the utmost "by open revolt if necessary," the regulations shortening the hours during which liquor may be sold, which came into effect November 29. The new regulations were described as an insinuation that working men are addicted to excessive drinking, which arose from a few isolated cases.

RECOMMENDED IT TO HIS BETTER HALF

She Was Very Miserable and Always Seemed Tired and Worn-out

There are many things learned from experience. Among them is the fact that stomach trouble, which may be due to indigestion, or acquired, and which produces indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, gas or bloated feeling, coated tongue, headache, backache, pains in the side, liver or kidney trouble and rheumatism, can be most successfully treated by the new herbal system tonic, Plant Juice. This truly remarkable preparation is a combination of roots, herbs, barks and berries, which are gathered especially for it.

That Plant Juice is bearing out the reputation established is attested by the following signed testimonial from Mr. Orlando Dickson, who lives at Derry, Pa. He said:

"For two years my wife suffered a great deal from nervousness. She always seemed tired, could not sleep and was entirely worn out. Her appetite was very poor and what little food she ate did not agree with her. Gas would accumulate in her stomach, causing her to have shortness of breath and she was chronically constipated. I wish to state that we had spent a great deal of money treating her, and have used different kinds of medicine, but she never received any benefit. Finally I read about your Plant Juice and prevailed upon my wife to try it. She has been taking Plant Juice now for only a short time and it has been a great benefit to her. Her appetite has returned, she does not suffer from gas on her stomach, and the shortness of breath has left her entirely. Her nerves are strong and she sleeps fine and is entirely cured. We cheerfully recommend Plant Juice to other. Plant Juice is sold in Waco by W. B. Morrison's 'Old Corner' Drug Company."

Labor Distribution Conference Called at Charleston, S. C.

By The Associated Press. Washington, Nov. 21.—Governors of sixteen southern states and mayors of the principal southern cities have been asked by Secretary Wilson of the department of labor to send delegates to the conference of labor distribution at Charleston, S. C., Dec. 16 and 17, in connection with the Southern Commercial congress.

official advice says the British have arrived there and are being re-enforced.

A Bucharest dispatch is authority for the statement that the first contingent of German troops has arrived at Constantinople.

Gorizia, the key to Trieste, is still under heavy bombardment by the Italian guns, and Rome claims further successes here and also on the Carso plateau and in the Zagora sector. Vienna admits that at Osavina the Austrians succeeded in recapturing the position, but declares that most of the position was recaptured and that extremely violent attacks against Podgora also were repulsed.

Along the western front in France and Belgium and on the eastern line in Russia there have been mining and artillery operations.

Official Austrian Statement. By The Associated Press. Vienna, Nov. 21, 9:33 p. m.—The official communication today reads:

"Russian theater: In Volhynia and on the Styria there has been cannonading. The Russians are employing gas bombs."

"Italian theater: The Italians, reinforced from the Tyrolean front, renewed attacks on the Gorizia bridgehead. Before Montebelluna several attacks collapsed. In the Osavina sector the enemy penetrated our line of defense. We recaptured the position, however, in a counter attack, except one summit, for which we are still fighting."

"Three enemy attacks against Peota miscarried, the enemy sustaining severe losses. Especially violent attacks against Podgora also were repulsed."

"Both sides of Monte San Michele were kept under strong gun fire. In the afternoon considerable enemy advanced on the northern slope. An attack was foiled. Several attacks were repulsed. Near Saurau, attacks on the Gorizia bridgehead met the same fate."

"On the summit of the Col di Lana the defenders repelled two Italian attacks."

"Southern theater: The Austro-Hungarian army forced a passage across the upper Drina north of Cajnice."

"German troops have occupied Novi-pazar. East of Novi-pazar an Austro-Hungarian column repulsed the enemy in the Ibar valley. The number of prisoners captured yesterday exceeds two thousand."

German Official Statement. By The Associated Press. Berlin, Nov. 21, by Wireless to Sayville.—The official announcement today follows:

"The German theater of war: German troops of General von Koeves have occupied Novi-pazar. The army of General von Gallwitz and the right wing of the army of General von Bock have been ordered to move into the Lab valley north of Pristina."

"Serbians captured Nov. 19 numbered 3800. Yesterday more than 4000 were captured."

"Western theater: Near the Ypres-Zonnebeke railroad the Germans exploded a large mine within the enemy's positions. The French exploded mines southwest of Souchez and near Souchez, without success. Near Souchez the Germans were the first to reach a hole made by a mine explosion and retained it."

"German aviators bombed with success Poperinghe and Furdenburg. British aviators, in turn, reported October 15, concerning the German attack southwest of Loos, that 8000 or 9000 German dead were lying before the French and British positions. This was a pure invention, as our losses were only 763."

"Eastern theater of war: The situation generally is unchanged."

Italian Official Statement. By The Associated Press. Rome, Nov. 21, via Paris, Nov. 21.—The official statement today follows:

"In the Cordevole valley large enemy forces attacked on the summit of Monte Colombino. Near Saurau, the enemy's attack here was put to flight with great loss."

"In Carnia there was great artillery activity."

"Along the Isonzo front, in the Zargona sector, we captured a strong barrier in the Fondo valley, taking 37 prisoners."

"In the Gorizia zone we have begun successfully an attack on the heights northeast of Osavina."

"On the Carso plateau, our infantry obtained a local footing on the top of Monte San Michele, between the third and fourth summits. Violent counter-attacks were repulsed, although the counter-attack here was put to flight with great loss."

"Aerial raids continue. One aviator was brought down by our anti-aircraft guns in the Milena zone. The pilot and observer were found dead. One of our air squadrons flew yesterday over the enemy's aviation camp at Assevizza, throwing more than 100 bombs, doing important damage. Our aviators returned safely."

French Official Statement. By The Associated Press. Paris, Nov. 21, 10:30 p. m.—The official communication tonight reads:

"Artillery actions have been very spirited. Enemy works were very badly damaged."

"In the Argonne at Boland we exploded successfully two series of mines. A very violent cannonade has taken place at Vaquois."

"On the heights of the Meuse, in the Bois des Chesvalliers, the explosion of a German mine caused no damage in our lines."

"Along the Ne east: Quiet has prevailed on the French front since the Bulgarian counter attacks on our positions in the direction of Kovurno. All the attacks were with appreciable losses to the enemy."

The landing of French and British troops at Saloniki continues without incident."

Dily Schappacher May Not Recover; Story Corroborated

By The Associated Press. St. Louis, Nov. 21.—Little Dily Schappacher, 11 years old, motherless girl, who was attacked, starved, whipped and worked almost to death on a farm near Netherlands, Mo., still was hovering between life and death in her home here tonight, but physicians said that even should she live her mind probably would be impaired permanently as a result of the tortures to which she was subjected during the last few months.

In the Pemont county jail at Caruthersville, Mo., Mrs. Martha Ivy, who is charged with felonious assault upon the child, which she had adopted today admitted, according to Sheriff Stubbfield, that she had tied Dily to a bed, had whipped her and had threatened to burn her. She said she did all this to discipline the child. Her husband, Ora Ivy, who is charged with a crime, corroborated his sister's story. Both children and Mrs. Ivy, however, still insisted that two men had attacked the girl. One of the two, the children charge, was Ora Ivy.

John Schappacher, 9-year-old brother of Dily, who, with his sister, was given by her father to the Ivy couple following the death of their mother in the Eastland disaster in Chicago last summer, today corroborated his sister's story. Both children and Mrs. Ivy, however, still insisted that two men had attacked the girl. One of the two, the children charge, was Ora Ivy.

Six Swedish Girls Act as Pallbearers at Hillstrom Funeral

By The Associated Press. Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 21.—Six Swedish girls, including one said to have been a victim of the Swedish disaster, acted as pallbearers at his funeral today. Each girl wore a red sash, which was attached to the casket when the body was carried to W. E. Hayward at Chicago. There was no prayer and no religious ceremony at the funeral.

The funeral was strongly condemned by various I. W. O. speakers, one of whom said the state authorities "would soon have cause to remember the day they buried Hillstrom and shot him."

I. W. O. songs, some of them by Hillstrom, were sung by the cortege as it passed through the streets.

NO CHANGE MADE IN BAYLOR UNIVERSITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Special to the Morning News.

Austin, Nov. 21.—Following the rather sensational resolution regarding the need of more care in selecting the trustees of the various Baptist colleges of the state, introduced before the Baptist General Convention of Texas on Friday but never adopted, there was no change in the personnel of the board of trustees of Baylor university, which Hon. Pat M. Neff, president of the board, believed was the object of the resolution, and the old members of the board were retained, as follows: Pat M. Neff, E. R. Nash, Sr., W. H. Jenkins, M. H. Standefer, Dr. J. T. Harrington, John F. Rowe, Frank E. Burkhalter, J. R. Collins, L. B. Smyth and George S. McGhee, Waco; Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas; George W. Carroll, Beaumont, and Dan E. Graves, Gatesville.

The trustees for Baylor Female college, Belton, are as follows: Class 1: W. H. Magee, Lampasas; J. H. Gambrell, Dallas; W. S. Calhoun, Temple. Class 2: J. H. Pepper, Belton; S. J. Porter, San Antonio; A. C. Barbour, Cleburne.

Class 3: A. J. Jarrell, Temple; J. B. Russell, Belton; E. E. King, McKinney.

Class 4: S. E. Tull, Temple; W. C. Lattimore, Dallas; G. L. Yates, Tyler. Dr. J. M. Dawson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Waco, occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist church this morning. Other visiting ministers occupied pulpits of practically all the Protestant churches.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."

PRESIDENT MAY READ MESSAGE ON DEC. 7

WORK WILL BEGIN THIS WEEK ON THIRD ANNUAL COMMUNICATION TO CONGRESS.

Chairman of House Appropriations Committee Wants Revenue Methods Included.

By the Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 21.—President Wilson will put aside practically all other public business this week to devote his entire time to completing his third annual message to congress, which he plans to read possibly at a joint meeting of the senate and house on Dec. 7. He has given instructions that none but important engagements be made for him.

The president is working hard to have the message in the hands of the public printer before Thanksgiving Day. No attempt is being made to deal in the document with all the public questions pressing for solution, for the president plans to read special messages to congress as occasions arise.

Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the house appropriations committee, held a long conference with the president tonight, and urged him to include in the message an outline of methods considered best for raising revenues to meet the appropriations deemed certain to be greatly increased because of the administration defense plans.

Would Amend Sundry Civil Bill. Mr. Fitzgerald directed attention to amendment to the sundry civil bill of 1903, which provides that in case the estimated appropriations exceed the estimates in any year the president may.

"Advise the congress how, in his judgment, the estimated appropriation could with least injury to the public service, be reduced so as to bring the appropriations within the estimated revenues, or, if such reduction be not, in his judgment, practicable without undue injury to the public service, that he may recommend to congress loans or new taxes."

The view was taken by Mr. Fitzgerald that the president should at least indicate generally how he thought the needed money might be raised and it was considered probable tonight that this will be done. Other advisers of the president, however, have told him that since revenue measures must originate in the house, it would not to appear to try to usurp that power.

Opposition to Bond Issue. Mr. Fitzgerald, Senator Underwood and a number of other leaders of congress on the democratic side are known to be opposed to a bond issue to pay for the army and navy.

Strengthening the army and navy in accordance with the plans outlined by Secretaries Garrison and Daniels.

A merchant marine bill. Rural credits legislation. Ratification of the Haitian, Colombian and Nicaraguan treaties.

The bill to give a greater measure of self-government to the Philippines and promising ultimate independence. Conservation measures which failed of final passage at the last session.

Amendment of the anti-trust laws so as to allow the use of common selling agencies abroad by American exporters.

Legislation to protect the American market against the "dumping" of cheap foreign products following the European war.

Amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law so as to give the federal government more power to prosecute plots to interfere with American commerce by blowing up factories and ships.

The administration also is interested in the efforts to establish a budget system for co-ordinating expenditures and revenues of the government and in a closure rule for the senate.

The president, however, is not expected to take a direct part in the closure fight.

Chairman Carter Glass of the house banking and currency committee talked with the president tonight about banking questions.

Rumor Conference Will Transfer Two Methodist Pastors

While the appointments that will be announced by the presiding bishop of the Central Texas conference, which opens at Corsicana Wednesday morning, will not be definitely known until they frequently pan out correctly, even in such exclusive circles as those in which Methodist appointments move, and the rumors concerning Waco appointments are to the effect that Rev. John R. Morris, pastor of the Fifth Street church, and Rev. W. A. Howard, pastor of the Morrow Street church, will be transferred to other fields of labor.

No new field has been assigned to them by the suggestions that are going the rounds, nor have the possible successors to these men in Waco been named in the rumors that have been heard. It is taken for granted that all the remaining pastorate in the city will be left undisturbed for another year.

SOUTH'S CAUSE IN WAR JUST, ASSERTS VISITOR

GENERAL E. W. KIRKPATRICK OF MCKINNEY ADDRESSES PAT CLEBURNE CAMP.

Veterans Tender Thanks for Cotton Palace Entertainment—Two New Members Received.

Formal resolutions of thanks to the Cotton Palace association and the Daughters of the Confederacy for entertainment on Confederate Veterans' Day at the exposition were adopted at the regular monthly meeting of Pat Cleburne camp No. 222, held in the Texas national guard armory yesterday afternoon. A large number of veterans were present.

W. S. Bratton, who served in company C, Harrison's Mississippi battalion, and W. C. Ely, who served in company G, Sixty-fourth Virginia cavalry, were admitted to membership in the camp.

Quartermaster John Moore was reported to be ill in a local hospital.

General E. W. Kirkpatrick of McKinney made a stirring speech in which he maintained that the cause of the South in the war of the Sixties was coming to be recognized as just throughout the country.

He described the relations between the Old Confederates and Union veterans during the recent reunion at Gettysburg, stating that in every case the Union veterans agreed with the Southerners that the fight was justified, at least, from the standpoint of the South, and that everywhere people were glad they lived in a country that could produce such courage and resourcefulness as characterized the embattled South during the Civil War.

He eulogized the Daughters of the Confederacy, and urged the veterans to maintain their organization at its present high efficiency.

Comrade Harris, historian of the camp, asked that the time for his next lecture be postponed until next meeting day.

Former Waco Man Heads Hotel Owners of Three States

Numbers of Waco people noticed in press dispatches yesterday that T. H. Glancy of St. Louis was elected president of the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma Hotel Owners' association at the annual meeting which closed in St. Louis Saturday night. Mr. Glancy is a former Waco man, having occupied the Metropole hotel here for many years. He is well known here, where many friends will be pleased to know that his ability has been recognized by his associates in his new home. Mr. Glancy went from Waco to St. Louis.

NEGROES HONOR MEMORY BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

CAPACITY MAJESTIC THEATRE IS TAXED BY CROWDS SEEKING ADMITTANCE.

Plantation Melodies Favorites of Dead Educator Sung by Paul Quinn Choral Club.

The capacity of the Majestic theatre was taxed yesterday afternoon to accommodate Waco's negro population who assembled to pay tribute to the memory of Booker T. Washington, who died at Tuskegee, Ala., Sunday, November 14. W. D. Miller presided and the program as arranged by a special committee representing the educational, religious and commercial elements, was carried out in detail.

The singing of negro plantation melodies, favorite songs of Washington, by the Paul Quinn Choral club, was an effective feature of the memorial services. The weird, enchanting species of music, sung by trained negro voices, produced wonderfully stirring effects. These melodies were given through out the program by the Paul Quinn Choral club and gave tone and an unique solemnity to the services.

The principal addresses were delivered by J. W. Strong, president of Central Texas college. He spoke upon on Booker Washington's work as an educator. He especially called attention to Washington's efforts to popularize vocational training among the negroes and his successful campaign to raise ordinary work to a higher plane and dignity.

R. L. Smith, president of the Farmers' Improvement bank and for many years closely associated with Washington, followed. His subject was "Washington, a National Character." In this line he spoke of the Tuskegee's service in creating a desire among his people for industrial development and training; in readjusting the relation and attitude of the races toward each other in the south; in unifying the north and south through education and contact in philanthropic work, and finally, his service in the social and economic development of the negro through trade schools established by graduates of Tuskegee institute, farmers' conference, business leagues and other agencies.

J. Newton Jenkins, pastor of the New Hope Baptist church, spoke effectively upon the religious life of Washington. The invocation was offered by M. F. Mitchell. The Scripture lesson was read by J. H. Lyant. The congregational singing was led by G. W. Anderson. C. T. Bacoat pronounced the benediction.

BAYLOR'S HOMECOMING.

Baylor University is seventy years old and is going to celebrate her birthday next Wednesday and Thursday with a homecoming to which she is inviting all her sons and daughters, from the oldest to the youngest.
Throughout her long and eventful history
Baylor has been turning out men and women who have been leaders in affairs of church and state, in business and social circles in Texas and elsewhere, and all of these are invited to return for a couple of days and do homage to Alma Mater who gave them much of the training and preparation that started them upon the road to their success.

It will be an informal affair, for the most part. There will be receptions for informal greetings, soirees, class and society reunions, snake dances on the athletic field, the singing of college songs and the giving of college yells, a football game, and good fellowship everywhere. Men and women who left the halls of the institution many years ago will recall the recollections of Baylor in the older days and homage will be paid to the gallant men and women who guided the destinies of the university in those days when existence called for a much greater struggle than it does today.
There will be no collections taken.

With a history dating back to the time when Texas was a republic, a career that has never ceased to be interesting, and with an accomplishment of which any institution might well be proud, Baylor is an inviting prospect for a sojourn of her thousands of sons and daughters at any time, but on the occasion of a seventieth birthday the attendance should be exceptionally large. The new grandstand and bathhouse on Carroll field, the gift of the Alumni association, will make you proud of the old field, while one of the best football teams in the history of the institution will strive to add another victory for the Green and Gold on Thanksgiving Day and thus add to the reasons why Baylor men and women ought to be grateful this year.

And while alumni and former students are coming from a distance it is incumbent upon local representatives of Baylor, and friends of the institution generally, to attend the various functions and assist the University authorities and students in making the visitors feel welcome and in entertaining them.

Dallam county citizens will celebrate Thanksgiving Day with a monster coyote drive, the aim being to rid the country of that pest.

At least 150 prisoners of the state will have occasion to give thanks next Thursday, as the governor has prepared that number of holiday pardons.

That growth in the attendance upon the Cotton Palace this year verified our assertion all along that the exposition would be bigger and better than in any previous year.

If the up-set in football dope all over the country this season has accomplished nothing else worth while it has at least put a quietus to the ranting of the "I told you so" guy.

While ex-Governor Campbell has been accused of being the Sphinx of Texas politics, he announced while attending the public servants' banquet in this city the other night that he would tell the people before the first of January whether he will be a candidate for the United States senate next year.

ONE ESSENTIAL IN CITY GOVERNMENT.

In the Dallas News we find the following observation upon the relation which mere form in city government bears to efficiency in such government:

"Clinton Rogers Woodruff, in addressing the National Municipal League, of which he is secretary, at Dayton the other day, said 'the tendency to regard the form as of first importance, and as in itself effective, is a characteristic of the older conception of American city government.' Nor, it seems to us, is the tendency much less marked now. Always we seem to be striving to contrive a governmental machine that will run of itself and thus relieve us of the task of giving it any thought. No form of municipal government, the old aldermanic, the commission, or the still more modern managership form, will afford that relief. If the commission form of government has proved more satisfactory than the old aldermanic form, or if the managership form has been still more satisfactory, the result is to be credited partly to the machinery, but chiefly to greater interest and vigilance on the part of the citizens. The chief merit of these advanced forms of government probably is that they excite the citizens into showing more concern in their municipal affairs.

"Mr. Woodruff paid high tribute to the marvelous accomplishments of the Germans in municipal management, but, as he said, these are not the achievements of the German people. It is not they who have ordered the things which we of this country so greatly admire. The German people are not the governors, but the governed. And it is also true, as Mr. Woodruff says, that democracy cannot hope to achieve the high degree of efficiency that is easy to an autocracy in municipal management. Either it must forego something of efficiency or something—and perhaps all—of democracy. One is the price of the other. Mr. Woodruff's choice is democracy. 'The hope of American cities,' he said, 'lies in the existence of a strong democratic sentiment, which is gradually manifesting itself in public life, and in the aspirations of the American people to achieve the highest good for the greatest number through definite community effort.'

It is certain that the aldermanic form of government would not have come into the disrepute that it has in many places if the masses of the people had manifested the interest in their affairs that they should and have elected as mayor and aldermen men who would have spurned the idea of distributing spoils, expending money for which there was not an urgent demand and naming men to office whose chief claim to consideration was that they had supported the man who had the appointments at his disposal.

The commission form of government has not accomplished in many places the things that were urged in its behalf simply because the people have not taken the interest that they should and have not always called forth the best type of men to fill the commissionships. And while we are in favor of the city manager form of government, that plan will not prove the success in other places that it has in Dayton, Ohio, and some other towns where it has been tried unless the people show their interest in their government by supporting the highest possible type of men for those offices charged with the duty of naming a city manager and throwing around the whole scheme proper safeguards that will guarantee to the people their full rights and the most efficient service. We cannot hope to evolve a plan of government that will work in a democracy without the people giving constant attention to the management of their affairs.

MEN AT WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Miss Lottie Stearns of Milwaukee, one of the well known club women and lecturers in her section of the country, in an address in New Orleans the other day, declared that the word, "Woman," should be dropped from the clubs.

"Modern clubs are studying questions and doing things in which men should have a part," she declared. "In Milwaukee there is a club of 1,500 men and women which holds weekly luncheons and monthly night meetings. It works splendidly, and the men are just as interested as the women. I've asked men if they are not willing to take an evening off once in two weeks and study Browning or some other culture subject, and they always say yes."

Woman has so broadened her sphere of activity within recent years that she is thinking along many lines of civic, educational and social endeavor in which man is also vitally concerned, and there is every reason why the efforts of both sexes might well be co-ordinated. Each will doubtless suggest from his or her viewpoint that will prove valuable, both on things to be striven for and how to go after them, to say nothing of the advantage that will come to each sex through the association with the other.

As a rule, women are more readily aroused on those things which affect the home, the children in the home, education, moral conditions of the community, sanitation and the like, all of them worthy of our most earnest and careful consideration, but in their lack of experience in getting results from those charged with official authority and the tendency, frequently, due to their great enthusiasm, to try and accomplish everything at once, the good women sometimes miss the goal for which they are striving. On the other hand, the men are too engrossed in business, often too forgetful of the welfare of the health, educational and moral interests of their children, and the general welfare of their community. A happy mean of women and men working together could be struck that would result in larger and more practical things being accomplished. The women might still take the initiative in movements looking to the common good, but by enlisting the men in their movements they would gain the advantage of the larger experience, the maturer political judgment, perhaps, and, generally, the greater political influence as well as moral suasion to accomplish most of the things for which the wide-awake women of today are striving.

But aside from all these considerations, there is room for the association of men with the women in the purely cultural clubs, and as Miss Stearns suggests, there are many men who would gladly accept an invitation to join their wives and neighbors in an evening's study of Browning, art, or some other subject of that nature. The presence of both men and women in such studies would make them more interesting for both sexes, and we believe it would be a step toward improving the home life of hundreds of our families, for it would tend to promote common interests between wives and their husbands, an improvement that is greatly needed in many of our homes.

CARRANZA THE REFORMER.

If, as reported, the recognized Mexican executive, General Carranza, has given orders to put an end to bull fighting as public sport in those cities of the republic where the Spanish method is followed of baiting an animal and provoking it to combat before it is dispatched, he has done well, according to the Christian Science Monitor. The decree reveals him as aware of the need of raising ideals of recreation and use of leisure among persons who now find in the unequal strife of the bovine brute with men that which seems to satisfy but in fact brutalizes onlookers. Other manifestations of the same attitude of reform will go far toward convincing a skeptical world that President Carranza is genuinely progressive in his plans for his country's future. He certainly has shown far-sightedness in sending so large a group of school principals and teachers to the United States as he has maintained there during the last six months. Every interview with him that bears the stamp of authenticity reveals his purpose to make actual in the way of popular education what Diaz pretended to create.

Best of all, he is awake to the need of greater freedom and activity for the women of the country; and it is significant to note that governors of some of the states already have begun to issue calls for assemblies of women where plans can be worked out for more federated action by the women and a greater share by them in shaping community and state action. This implies a profound break with past national traditions, and just because it is so unprecedented it is so significant. If the response at first is slight it will not be surprising, in view of the inertia bred by centuries of a contrary theory of woman's place in society. The main fact now is that the ideal has formal recognition, and that women who dare to break with conventions and enter upon the broader field of influence and action can get the support of some of the men of the country, fortunately now in power.

Facts like these finding their way across the border to the republic of the north, together with news of an optimistic sort about reviving traffic on railways now operative and about resumption of business in the chief towns, tend to raise the hopes of Mexico's friends who believe that the days of factionalism and obscurantism are over.

Baptists of Texas evidenced good taste in deciding to come to Waco for their 1916 convention.

Every day or so we find something new to admire in Mrs. Norman Galt, the president's fiancée. Her wedding trousseau will be made in the United States.

It was the general consensus of everybody who saw the Cotton Palace this year that it was the most progressive and prosperous looking six-year-old exposition they had ever had the privilege of looking upon.

Now that "Cyclone" Davis has announced, on the eve of his departure for Washington, that he will not be a candidate for governor in 1916, we presume Governor Ferguson will be able to sleep well at nights, following the recovery from the shock he received in Bell county.

LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE EXPLAINED

FOR AER U. S. MINISTER TO BELGIUM MAKES ADDRESS IN NEW YORK CHURCH.

BLAMES GERMANY FOR WAR

Swift Punishment Proposed for Any Nation Not Living Up to Agreement.

Special to the Morning News.
New York, Nov. 21.—Blaming Germany as alone responsible for precipitating the present European conflict, Theodore Marburg, former United States minister to Belgium, in an address here today outlined the plans of the League to Enforce Peace, to insure world peace in the future. Mr. Marburg was one of the originators of the proposals of the league which were adopted at Philadelphia, in Independence hall, on June 17th, when the league was organized. Ex-President Taft is the president of the organization. Mr. Marburg spoke as follows:

"Passing from England into Scotland a few weeks after the great war began, I was reminded of the bloody battles waged along the border for so many generations, all stilled by the union of the two countries. In Italy for fourteen centuries after the fall of the Roman Empire of the West there was practically no peace. Incessant wars between principalities and between city states made the land an easy prey from time to time for the foreign conqueror until in modern times stable government has slowly gathered around certain centres, the genius of Cavour and the fiery patriotism of Garibaldi finally welding all the states into a united Italy. In France and Germany for generations war was the very business of the gentlemen, followers of feudal lord and petty prince taking only a week-end holiday, called the 'Truce of God,' from their bloody work. The establishment of a central authority in France did away with this anarchy and brought the various principalities and kingdoms in Germany brought about a like result there.

"From a consciousness of facts such as these there emerges the conviction that in striving to supplant force by law, anarchy by organization, all the forces of history are with us. Progress in any direction of human endeavor is seldom without interruption. It has been and it will be so. But the right which is the right of the future is the right of the present. The past shows that the group of men—few at first, growing more numerous as time goes on—who have been and are working for the suppression of war, the planting of a solid foundation of fact; that the logic of events is with them; that they are moving in the right direction, and that, as 'direction' is everything in this world, they will win in the end. For many men the present cataclysm has swept away the foundation of things; their reliance on what may, on the whole, be regarded as the old order of things, their faith in treaties, in the authority of law and in the larger sway and ultimate triumph of reason in international affairs.

One People Responsible.
"But if looked at calmly, the advent of the great war, however extended its reach, did not retrograde its practice, ought not to discourage him who loves justice and believes in its growing power. And for this reason, namely, that the war was precipitated by one people, and that the same people are engaged in preparing for 'the day,' and which alone, of all the great nations, still believes in war. The backward and inhuman practices likewise inaugurated by the same people are the outcome of a conscious policy of terrorism fastened upon them by their military leaders. Discouragement is found rather in the fact that the allies, embracing so many nations, should have failed to live up to the requirements of international law and humanity regardless of what their opponents might do, and, above all, that a great neutral power like the United States should have remained dumb and inactive while the practices of the world, so painfully and slowly and laboriously built up through generations of endeavor, were being set back, that it should finally assume itself only when its own interests were affected. If it be a duty to help build up law and decent conduct in the society of nations, is it not equally a duty to do so by attempting to protect and to uphold both when they are attacked?

"Wars will not cease till justice prevails. The best line of attack is therefore to organize the nations for justice. And the first step in this direction is to devise some means of getting the nations into court. The League to Enforce Peace proposes to accomplish this by providing that any signatory who fails to live up to another signatory without first submitting its grievance for a hearing shall be faced with the certainty of swift punishment. It is not a question of calling a court, but of having the power to call what action, if any, shall be taken. Such conferences often end in doing nothing. And much mischief may be done while they are deliberating. On the contrary, the league has the power to call a court of law, to enforce the law, and to bring the nations into court. AUDITORIUM.

Forbes-Robertson's Leave-Taking.

Playgoers of this city are to see Forbes-Robertson, foremost actor of the time, for the last time at the Auditorium tonight. Forbes-Robertson is retiring from the stage after a period of forty years' service to the drama, an abundant and illustrious career. The histrionic talents, the traits and the qualities of imagination and artistry of Forbes-Robertson have enriched and adorned the theatre and stand out in bold relief in this age when great acting is rare.

Forbes-Robertson was born in London on January 16, 1853. He made his stage debut when he was 21, after having devoted three years to the study of painting. The art he had hoped to make his life-work. He has never abandoned his painting, though the stage has claimed the greater part of his time and labor and love. His home contains many canvases which speak of the success that might have been his had he not become an actor.

The career of Forbes-Robertson is the history of the English stage for the past thirty years. He has been identified with the chief actors of his time. His own productions are outstanding features of the theatre of this generation. His Hamlet is the chief glory of the English-speaking stage of this age. As a classical actor he has no rival. And the classical—inasmuch as this represents the natural, solid and true school of acting whether in old or modern drama—is reflected in all his work.

With the leave-taking of Forbes-Robertson the public loses one of the most notable figures in the history of the stage. What consolation there may be in his parting must be in the fact that we see him for the last time in the fullness of his powers, in the ripeness of his maturity as a man and as an artist.

Daddy Long-Legs.

Under the direction of Henry Miller the New York Gaiety theatre success, "Daddy Long-Legs," will play its first tour this season, including this city in its route. For an entire season this charming Jean Webster comedy remained in New York, following its run in Chicago. When Mr. Miller first presented the play he had no idea of the great success it would attain. Booked for three weeks at Powers' theatre, Chicago, it remained for twenty-six weeks. The story first appeared as a serial in a woman's magazine, and was read by over five million people. Later in book form it went through a dozen editions and is still one of the big sellers. Mr. Miller will present "Daddy Long-Legs" at the Auditorium theatre on Saturday night, Nov. 27, with a notably excellent cast and production.

HIPPODROME.

"Old Heidelberg."

An hour of unalloyed enjoyment is promised to the patrons of the Hippodrome in the Triangle Fine Arts five-part play, "Old Heidelberg," with pretty Dorothy Gish and handsome, stalwart Wallace Reid in the leading roles of Prince Karl and the inkeeper's daughter. The story is as follows:

Karl Heinrich, the hereditary prince of Rutania, is educated according to the strict military rules of court, which even as a small child he rebelled against. When he is twenty years old he is sent to the University of Heidelberg, where he meets Kathie, the niece of the inkeeper at whose tavern Karl lodges. A romance springs up which is short lived, however, as before his first year is finished his uncle, the reigning prince, determines to enter a great war and sends for Karl to come and take command of his troops. Karl at first refuses to do this, but Dr. Juttner, his old tutor, persuades him to go, thinking that perhaps his presence will prevent war. The uncle is obdurate and Karl is unable to dissuade him from entering the war, although the people are greatly opposed to it.

A mob assembles outside the palace, which so infuriates the uncle that he dies of heart failure. Karl quiets the people by telling them that there will be no war.

For reasons of state, Karl's uncle has betrothed him to a princess of a neighboring principality, and Karl is in honor bound to carry out the agreement, though his heart is breaking for Kathie. He determines since he must sacrifice his own happiness, to return to Heidelberg and bid the students and Kathie good-bye, but finds that in becoming the reigning prince he is separated from his old friends. Even Kathie is somewhat in awe of him. With breaking hearts they say good-bye, and Karl returns

"A Favorite Fool."

Can you imagine Eddie Foy running a trolley car? Motorman's cap cocked on the side of his head, hands struggling with the controller, wobbly legs shaking with the motion of the car, and Polly Moran frantically trying to butt in on his efforts, the spectacle is one that would make anybody chortle with laughter. You see him running up and down the car aisle frantically, looking wildly in this direction and that for help, then returning to the controller and the struggling Polly, till finally the crazed car under his misguided efforts hits an automobile and Eddie, Polly and the seven little Foyes are thrown out promiscuously.

This actual scene will be witnessed in "A Favorite Fool," the new Sennett-Keystone comedy that appears on the Triangle program at the Hippodrome, with "Old Heidelberg." The story is that of a hobo who wins the affections of a buxom widow, who is the owner of a small circus, but is ousted from her property by a rascally ringmaster. The widow is some trickster herself. She weds Eddie Foy in the play without letting him know that he thereby becomes the stepfather of her seven lively pledges of affection to her first husband. Of course Eddie runs away, the lady and the seven stepchildren furiously pursuing.

Then Foy meets a clown, who gets back the papers from the ringmaster, and he decides that it will be the part of thrift to go back to the widow and her seven children, after all, and thus become the moneyed proprietor of the circus. Mr. Foy commandeers a trolley car, kicks out the conductor and motorman, cocks the motorman's cap on his own head and starts the car toward Circusville. The screen, like George Washington, cannot lie, and Eddie Foy as commanding general of a trolley in full flight is a sight for gods and men.

QUEEN.

Edmund Breese.

"The Song of the Wage Slave," in which Edmund Breese, the unrivaled dramatic actor, is presented by the Metro Pictures corporation, is a five-part picturization of the famous poem of the same name from "The Spell of the Yukon," and other verses of Robert W. Service. It tells how New Lane, a rugged, honest hearted mill worker, sought the love of pretty Mildred Hale, whose young affections were already given to Frank Dawson, the dashing young son of the millionaire mill owner, and what came of it. It is a sublime story of a strong man's supreme sacrifice and unselfish devotion, consisting of five acts, a select cast with 300 scenes.

Queen theatre today and tomorrow.

"Bought."

Suppose you were a newspaper man or magazine writer, an author, or a dramatist, without money and in debt to your landlady—broke, in fact—and a woman came to you with the following proposition in something like these terms:

"I know your plight. But you are a gentleman; I have watched you, studied you, know you. The celebrated society girl, Miss Jones, is about to become a mother. The man who was to have married her went down on the Titanic. The girl's good name must be saved. Marry her. You'll get $10,000 down and a desk in her father's Wall street office."

What would you do? The impecunious scribe in this photoplay accepted the lady's offer, married the girl, received his money, got his job.

What follows is eminently worth seeing in his highly dramatic film.

NICKEL.

"A Night in the Show."

Charlie Chaplin in the new two-part Essanay comedy released and shown for the first time, at the Nickel today, is creating a funnier-than-ever role, discarding as he does the old shoes and trousers, wearing instead full dress and high hat. Mr. Sonnenman, manager of the Nickel, says regarding "A Night in the Show": "Yes, I saw this creation at the Hippodrome, Dallas, yesterday, paid twenty cents, too, and it's by far the best comedy I ever saw, no matter who the star. This, also, from the demonstration of the people who had stood in line for hours waiting to get inside the house, was the unanimous verdict, for the demonstration of approval has never been equaled in any show or house that I ever attended. Waco people surely should appreciate the opportunity offered by the Nickel of seeing this class of pictures, the highest priced today, at so small an admission price. Our house is the only place in Texas that releases new Chaplin comedies charging only five cents. Tell the people this for me, and also that they can come any time today—that Chaplin will be on; no long waits on other pictures, but a full Chaplin show every thirty minutes."

W. S. Gillespie
Resumes Duties After
Leave of Absence

W. S. Gillespie, city passenger and ticket agent for the Cotton Belt, who has been in the company hospital at Texarkana for the last ten days, returned home yesterday morning. Mr. Gillespie has fully recovered and will resume his duties at the city ticket office today. Gus Hoover, traveling passenger agent, who has been substituting for Mr. Gillespie, left last night for his headquarters at Fort Worth.

Dr. Barton Still Quite ill in Dallas
With Typhoid Fever

Dr. A. J. Barton, superintendent of the Texas Anti-Saloon league, but whose residence is in this city, continues quite ill with typhoid fever in the Baptist Memorial sanitarium at Dallas, where he has been for the past two weeks. He is holding his own, however, and the physicians hope for a turn for the better, possibly today. Special prayer for his recovery was offered at the First Baptist church of this city yesterday morning, where he was pastor for several years. Mrs. Barton is at his bedside and is keeping the family here posted on the case. There is no truth in the story published in some of the papers to the effect that Dr. Barton had developed pneumonia. Dr. Barton was reported to be resting well late yesterday.

The safest soap for babies is Resinol

This is so, first because it is one of the few soaps which contain no free alkali—that harsh, drying chemical which so frequently causes eczema, or other skin irritation. But, even more important, it contains the soothing, healing Resinol medication to keep the delicate skin soft, clear and beautiful. You can safely trust your baby's skin health to Resinol Soap.

Sold by all druggists. For trial size cake free, write to Dept. 2-F, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

*Prescribed by doctors, for over 20 years, in Resinol Ointment, to heal skin affections.

TRAVELERS' AID LOOMS UP DURING EXPOSITION

EFFICIENT WOMEN AT DESKS IN RAILROAD STATIONS HAVE DONE WONDERS.

Estimated 75,000 Persons Departed and Arrived at Two Railroad Stations.

Miss Kate Wright, who has been assisting Mrs. Minnie Scarborough as Travelers' Aid at the union station during the Cotton Palace, completed her services last midnight. At the same hour Mrs. C. E. Green, who has been acting for the Travelers' Aid at the Katy-Texas Central depot, also finished her services. Mrs. Green, like Miss Wright, has been doing special duty as a result of the Cotton Palace crowds.

The exposition period has proven the almost absolute necessity for a Travelers' Aid at the two depots. During the sixteen days of carnival it is a conservative estimate to place the total of people arriving and departing at the two stations at 60,000—75,000 would be more nearly correct. The number who have sought information at the Travelers' Aid desks cannot be estimated. Suffice it that thousands took advantage of the presence of the Travelers' Aid and secured routings, directions as to hotels and in many cases financial assistance.

"Probably a score of excursion trains have been run into Waco during the Cotton Palace," said J. W. Foster, depot master at the Katy, about 6 o'clock last night when more than 1500 people were lining the station platform and waiting rooms. "The crowds you see here now have been an almost daily occurrence. They include the Fort Worth and Dallas excursionists and passengers who will leave on the regular trains. No one on earth realizes the number of questions asked. It is not a matter of a few an hour, but of several every minute."

All the people who have been handled at the two depots were not Cotton Palace visitors. The Cotton Palace visitors only in rare instances needed advice. They had money and as a usual thing knew the city and had an objective point. But there were hundreds handled who were not excursionists and fun-hunters. They were a species of the home-seeker taking advantage of the reduced rates and in numerous instances with but scant funds. Families moving from one section of the state to another. These people needed assistance, for it is a railroad axiom that no one is as helpless as the person inexperienced in traveling.

People have applied to the Travelers' Aid during the last three weeks for everything from a dime for coffee and sandwich to information as to the most direct route and the cost of a ticket to Hamlin, Aroostook county, Maine. Some of the cases were pitiable; others were ordinarily so. All, though, needed attention. Young men, discouraged, broke out of work and attracted here because the crowds were headed in this direction, were found employment; old ladies, in a strange community and afraid, were given prompt attention; young women and even girls, separated from their companions, found proper association and perhaps safety from the vicious element.

The list might be extended into all classes of the unfortunate. It is sufficient to say that the Travelers' Aid has demonstrated its importance and displayed its opportunities for good during the last twenty days.

Mrs. Landrum Back from Falls County Educational Rally

Mrs. J. L. Landrum, organizer and supervisor of girls and boys' club work of the state agricultural department, returned yesterday from a four-day educational rally at Falls county educational rally. About 600 patrons and teachers were in attendance.

"It was the first educational rally ever held in Falls county," said Mrs. Landrum. "I am positive, though, yesterday's success will cause the event to become a permanent annual institution. The entire county was represented. Addresses were made upon all subjects affecting the school, the farm and the home. The interest taken was earnest and enthusiastic. In addition, the social features were delightful. The ladies of Durango gave a most sumptuous luncheon to the 600 visitors at the high school building and there basketball games, band music, singing by glee clubs and numerous other features."

Among those who made addresses were Mrs. Landrum, who spoke upon "Wholesome Cooking Under Rural Conditions;" Prof. Ernest Scholl, state entomologist; Prof. A. E. Busby of the Durango high school and several others. The Marlin brass band supplied the heavy harmonies. The Marlin Glee club also gave several numbers. Basketball games between the Marlin boys' high school team and the Rosebud school's boys' team resulted in a victory for the latter, while the game between the girls' teams from the same schools resulted in the defeat of the Rosebud team.

Mrs. Landrum, incidentally, has been an extremely busy official during the last few days. She returned Friday from Sherman, where she acted as a judge of the culinary exhibits at the Red River Valley fair. Peculiarly she awarded the sweepstakes prize to one of her club girls.

Hudgens, 16 years old, of near Denison, Miss Hudgens entered sixty-seven jars of all varieties. During Thursday morning at Denison, Mrs. Landrum attended the Grayson County Home Economics convention at Denison. There were 110 girls in attendance. The high school students served breakfast and the chamber of commerce gave a luncheon for the visitors. Other social courtesies also were shown.

Yeggmen Obtain $750 by Cracking Safe of Store in East Waco

Yeggmen, evidently experienced, performed one of the neatest jobs ever perpetrated in the Southwest, at the store of William Reese, 1031 Elm street, East Waco, about 3:30 Sunday morning.

The safe-blowing was reported to the police station at 4 o'clock, and within a few minutes Police Chief Guy McNamara, Sheriff S. S. Fleming, Constable Leslie Stegall, with deputies and other officers were on the scene. Telegrams and telegraph messages were distributed to sheriffs' offices and police departments in all directions—as far north as Dallas and Fort Worth and south to Houston and Galveston. In the meantime, search began in all sections of Waco and vicinity. No clues or other information which might lead to the arrest of the yeggs had been discovered late last night.

The robbery yesterday morning was the first safe-blowing that has taken place in Waco within ten years. It is the only instance of safe-blowing in which any considerable sum was secured.

Practically every detail of the safe-blowing indicated careful preparation and the work of the trained yegg. The motor house at the back of the store first was entered and pick, cold chisel and an axe secured. They then returned to the front of the store, broke the Yale lock and pried the door open. From the front, it is presumed, they passed directly to the back of the store and opened the rear door, preparatory to escape in the event of discovery. The matter of drilling the safe, inserting the nitro and applying a match to the fuse followed.

Only one explosion was necessary to lift the door from the safe. It is thought they used a heavy load, in that the report was heard several blocks away. W. C. McCallum, living directly across the street, was aroused. He thought it was a shotgun report.

After observing that the Reese store was dark, he correctly concluded there had been a robbery, and notified the police station.

C. H. Wilson, residing two blocks from the store, also heard the report. He got up to investigate. A few moments later, he saw two men, with hats pulled down and collars turned up, walking rapidly from the alley between Taylor and Elm streets. They passed his home to Cherry and from Cherry went toward the railroad track on Earl street. An automobile passed on Cherry about the same time coming from town. It is not known whether the occupants of the auto used a circuitous route and later joined the yeggmen for a quick escape. Louis

Platt, night watchman at the Waco Cotton Oil company, heard the report, but was unable to locate the sound.

It is understood Police Chief McNamara found an article which may be a clue. He was working long distance and telegraph last night in an effort to develop the clue and ascertain whether it was of any value. On the theory that yeggs keep themselves informed as to developments, the exact nature of the clue was not made public.

Mr. Reese declines to say whether he believes the work is of local or imported talent. He is silent as to whether he has observed any suspicious looking strangers in his store during the last few days. Sheriff Fleming, Police Chief McNamara and Constable Stegall also decline to guess as to the residence of the yeggmen.
